Awards

The Council of the City of New York Citation, Metrocard Vending Machine 2026
Awarded by District 1 Council member Christopher Marte as an Outstanding Citizen to mark over 25 years of the MTA Metrocard Vending Machine touchscreen graphic interface design. This design has been used by billions of users from all over the world over this period to purchase Metrocard fares to ride New York City subways and busses. The interface has remained fundamentally unchanged since my original design in 1997.

Emily Harvey Foundation Residency, Venice, Italy 2026
The Last Shot Clock is a long-form audio-visual work by Dexter Sinister based on a pair of custom-designed and programmed eccentric digital clocks first shown in the 55th Venice Biennale in 2013. It is modular, comprised of 16 short videos that recount timekeeping anecdotes drawn from diverse fields including economics, quantum physics, literature, and art. This residency in Venice allows proximity, access, and time to complete the work.

Museum Collections

Dia Art Foundation, study collection 2024
Arena Momentum poster and plotter performance prints were added to the Dia Art Foundation collection. This work was designed for and exhibited in Rita McBride, Arena Momentum, a 2-year exhibition at Dia Beacon.

Books

*A Co- Program for Graphic Design* 2025
Inventory Press & Distributed Art Publishers, Los Angeles / New York
This sequel to *A New Program for Graphic Design* with three new Princeton University graphic design classes developed and reconsidered for remote teaching during the COVID 19 pandemic. C-i-r-c-u-l-a-t-i-o-n looks at digital and analog networks that graphic design requires; M-u-l-t-i-p-l-i-c-i-t-y (co-taught with mathematics professor Philip Ording while at Institute for Advanced Studies) examines overlaps between graphic design and topology; R-e-s-e-a-r-c-h (created under a 250th Anniversary Fund grant) considers models for “design research” in contemporary practice. Developed explicitly for the context of remote teaching and in light of the urgent realignments around whose stories get told and who does the telling, these classes substantially multiply the number of voices and on the page. Contributors include Danielle Aubert, Adam Pendleton, Barbara Glauber, Tauba Auerbach, Philip Ording, Adam Michaels, and Shannon Harvey on subjects including the Detroit Printing Co-op, Corita Kent, Giuseppe Peano, Marshall McLuhan, Sylvia Harris, and Virgil Abloh.

Design as (Programmed) Art 2025
Corraini Edizioni, Mantova, Italy
Number 5 in a series of “research notebooks” with the publisher of Italian artist and designer Bruno Munari, this volume accompanies an exhibition of the same name developed for Spazio Munari, Milan. The 12,000-word original research text tracks a series of Munari’s design projects in the 1960s, 1970s, and 1980s which operate as series, following the programmatic logic of a computer program. These include a long-running book series with Einaudi publishers, a set of books with Bompiani, ceramic tiles for Gabbianelli, and posters for Campari.

새로운* 그래픽 디자인 교육 과정* 2024
(*A New Program for Graphic Design* by David Reinfurt (Korean edition)), Workroom, Seoul
Translated to Korean by Min Gu Hong, this do-it-yourself textbook was originally published in 2019. It is based on three graphic design classes that articulate a course of study in graphic design developed at Princeton since 2010.

Un Nouveau Programme pour le Design Graphique 2024
(*A New Program for Graphic Design* by David Reinfurt (French edition)), Éditions 205, Paris
Translated to French by Elsa Beyer and Camille Pageard.

Dexter Sinister, YKSIHW KCALB 2024
Sternberg Press, Berlin
Recounts the 15-year history of a cooperatively-produced whisky, conceived as an artwork by Dexter Sinister (David Reinfurt and Stuart Bertolotti-Bailey). The story, told in reverse, begins with the delivery of 342 bottles in 2022 and ends with an interview from 2007 where the idea began. A project summary is accompanied by photographs and five texts written along the way.

Curated Solo Exhibitions

"Dexter Sinister, Grey Area," Cukrarna Art Center, Ljubljana, Slovenia 2024–
 This year-long exhibition project by Dexter Sinister takes over one floor of a new 60,000-sq.-ft. art museum in the center of Ljubljana. The space is reconfigured with grey carpet, grey walls, grey lighting, and a series of painted white projection surfaces where one video per month by a designer or artist whose work exists somewhere in the middle of art and design is shown. Dexter Sinister is curating the exhibition, writing the exhibition texts, creating the publicity graphics, and showing four video works.

Curated Group Exhibitions

"Brise-Soleil, Exquisite Corpse, Denniston Hill," 61st Venice Biennale, Venice 2026

Yale University School of Art, Graduate Graphic Design program review

2024

Invited with three leading academics (Pouya Ahmadi, Rhode Island School of Design, Clara Balaguer, Piet Zwart Institute, Nora N. Khan, Brown University) to perform a comprehensive review of this graduate graphic design program. Over four days in New Haven, we interviewed current students, selected alumni, and current faculty. This work was invited and directed by Kymberly N. Pinder, Stavros Niarchos Foundation Dean Professor of Art.
